Applications Now Open for the ABF/JPB Foundation Access to Justice Scholars Program

We are pleased to announce that the American Bar Foundation (ABF) is now inviting applications for Faculty Scholars to join the 2023-24 cohort of the ABF/JPB Foundation Access to Justice Scholars Program. Applications are welcome from empirical scholars in a broad range of disciplines and interdisciplinary programs. We encourage members of our community to share this opportunity with eligible candidates in your academic circle.

Since 2020, the ABF/JPB Foundation Access to Justice Scholars Program has brought together cohorts of Faculty Scholars to support their research, mentor their progress, and build intellectual relationships needed to grow the access to justice field. The program is directed by ABF Faculty Fellow Rebecca Sandefur, who received a 2018 MacArthur "Genius Grant" for her work on access to justice. By facilitating the translation of research into practice, the program generates more effective approaches to improve justice for all.

Applications will be accepted until January 6, 2023 and can be accessed by clicking the button below or visiting the ABF's website. The scholarship is non-residential and for a duration of 18 months. Scholars selected for the 2023-24 cohort will be expected to attend an in-person kickoff meeting in March 2023. Over the course of the scholarship, Faculty Scholars will convene for additional in-person and virtual meetings. More information about the program and past scholars is available here.
